Damage In Texas Flood Runs Into The Millions

SEVENTEEN LIVES
TOLL IN GREATEST
FLOOD IN HISTORY
LONE STAR STATE

Twenty-Five Hundred Are Rerendered Homeless By The High Waters

RESCUE WORKERS ARE SEEKING BODIES

Flood Waters Continue To Rise And The Danger Is Augmented

(International News Service)
FORT WORTH, Texas, April 26—Loss of 17 lives, approximately 2,500 rendered homeless and property damage that will run into the millions is the toll of Fort Worth's greatest flood, which has raged since Tuesday morning.

Rescue workers under the direction of the Fort Worth chapter of the American Red Cross, combed portions of the flooded areas for bodies Wednesday morning without success.

Augmented by additional heavy rains, the flood waters continued to rise today and officials here pronounced the situation more grave than Tuesday when the Trinity river first started on its rampage.

VICKSBURG WORRIED

VICKSBURG, Miss., April 26—With rainfall here of 1.62 inches last night, it was a time of anxiety regarding the levees in this district, but early reports today were optimistic in character.

Conditions are unchanged at Lake Providence. The situation at Milliken Bend, where sloughing had occurred is so much improved that the force of workers has been reduced.

At nine o'clock last night and again at 3 o'clock this morning slides occurred at the Iona levee on the Louisiana side, about 22 miles south of Vicksburg. This is the tenth slide to date and engineers expect the damage can be speedily repaired.

Weather officials report the rainfall local in character, judging from local reports. The rainfall, however, flooded Washington street, main artery to the city, now protected by levees and water was about three feet deep this morning, but is being pumped out.

On the Y. and M. V. railroad night trains from Vicksburg to Greenville have been annulled. Levee street was flooded by the rain, but pumps are working today, taking care of the water.

CREST PASSES

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 26—The crest of the flood which swept sections of this city yesterday has passed today. As the waters begin to lower hundreds of workers began a search for bodies. None had been recovered at noon, but it is estimated that the list of the dead in the flooded area will amount to close to 50.

The Trinity river had dropped more than six feet this afternoon. It had reached a record mark of 39.1 feet. City water service was restored today.

President Goes To Ohio Township

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 26—President Harding will leave Washington today on his first pilgrimage to Ohio since he became President. He will go to Point Pleasant, a tiny township on the Ohio river, where he will deliver an address tomorrow in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of General Grant.

COTTON PLANTING IS DELAYED THIS WEEK BY THE HEAVY RAIN

With lowering clouds hanging heavy over this section of the country with the advent of the week which was counted on to plant the cotton crop of the country, not much progress has been made toward this end.

Rain came Tuesday evening in just such quantities to render the ground, which has scarcely recovered from the heavy rains of the preceding week, too wet to plant. From the 20th to 25th of April is always considered the date in which cotton is usually planted in this section. Considering the advent of the boll weevil which is thought to be menacing the present year, it was the intention of planters to get as early start as possible with the plant. Just what effect the continued wet will have on the size of the crop is problematical.

Up to this time very little corn has been planted also, due to the causes mentioned above. Much of the land of the county intended for planting this season has not been thoroughly and in prime plowing condition since last fall. Inconvenience with several planters from different sections of the county the last few days the above facts were learned by a Daily reporter.

The farmers are without exception in good spirits and are resolved to make a supreme effort to make and harvest one of the best crops in recent years, well balanced with diversification.

Speaks On Pool Of Cotton Crop

The nation-wide movement for pooling the cotton of the South is gaining momentum. Men of affairs are becoming interested in the movement. C. A. Cobb, editor of the Southern Ruralist, of Atlanta, Ga., will address public mass meetings in Morgan and Cullman county soon, being at Hartselle Friday, May 5, at 10 o'clock; Cullman on Friday, May 5, at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Cobb is a national figure, born and reared on a southern farm, educated in Tennessee and Mississippi, famous for his work with the club boys of Mississippi, and known in over 350,000 homes as the editor of Southern Ruralist.

(International News Service)
BALTIMORE, Md., April 26—Henry Ford has become an issue in the convention of the League of Women Voters here. Southern delegates supporting his Muscle Shoals project are lining up today to put through a resolution placing the league, with its 7,000,000 women voters on record as endorsing his proposition before congress.

Their first activity in behalf of the flivver king's bid was to secure recommendation of it in a report submitted to the convention by the league's committee on food supply. The women of the South will join the men in making a political issue of Ford's proposal if congress rejects it, according to Mrs. Solon Jacobs, of Alabama, national secretary of the league.

It will require a two-thirds vote in the convention here to pass a resolution endorsing the project and its supporters admit they anticipate opposition on the floor.

Mrs. Jacobs refused to comment on the proposed resolution or the possible action of the convention, but it is true, she said, that the "women of my state and other states of the South are keenly interested in Ford's Muscle Shoals project. We believe it will reduce the cost of living, for it will make fertilizer cheaper for the farmer and cut down the price of electricity. It is bound to give the whole country cheaper light for if Ford shows he can reduce the price of electricity, there will be a demand from consumers throughout the United States that corporations which control the lighting to cut down enormous profits and lower the public's light bill."

"Indeed the women of the South will be heard from at the polls if congress rejects the bid. We know down South that the most powerful interests in the country are behind the opposition to Ford's bid."

VALLEY CITIES WILL HAVE BALL LEAGUE

(Special To The Daily)

COURTLAND, Ala., April 26—Plans are rapidly maturing for the opening of the Tennessee Valley Amateur League on Tuesday, May 2nd. This league is composed of Hillsboro, Courtland, Town Creek and Leighton, and was recently organized with a view of supplying the Tennessee Valley with organized baseball. Charles E. Bragg of Town Creek was elected president of the new league, "Slats" Vinson of Leighton is vice-president and Austin James of Hillsboro is secretary. In addition to these three officers, one director from each town in the league was chosen, and together with the president will have complete charge of the management of the new organization.

It is planned to make the trips to and from the different towns entirely by automobile, as the distance between the towns is not great. The season is to be divided and the winners of each half, will meet in a championship series to determine the pennant winners. Managers for all four teams have already been chosen and are daily working out their squads. Hillsboro will open the season in Courtland, and Town Creek will open in Leighton. The local team is rapidly rounding into form, and will be ready for the opening game with one of the best teams which have ever played on the local diamond. Much interest is being manifested and enthusiasm is at its height. A schedule of 36 games has been adopted, which will be two games a week for each team, one game at home and one away.

PREPARATIONS ARE MADE FOR RAISING FUNDS IN MORGAN FOR CHILDREN'S AID

Miss Virginia Handley, Extension Secretary, Is Albany-Decatur Visitor

COMMITTEES WILL MEET ON THURSDAY

Chairman Calvin Calls Conference of the Workers in Twin Cities

Miss Virginia Handley, extension secretary of the Alabama Children's Aid Society, is in Albany and Decatur in the interest of the work of this society. Miss Handley's mission is to acquaint as many people as possible all over the state, with the work that the society is doing for the thousands of dependent neglected and abandoned children of the state and to raise funds for this worthy cause.

Miss Handley spoke at the Culture Club on Tuesday and the following committee was appointed from the club to assist her in the campaign:

Mrs. Wyker, one of the state directors of the Children's Aid Society, Mrs. E. C. Payne, Mrs. J. T. Jones, Mrs. F. F. Tidwell.

J. H. Calvin, temporary chairman of the campaign, has called a meeting for 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. of the above committee and committees from other clubs that will be named later to draw up plans for the work. The committee from the Kiwanis Club is as follows:

Chas. Matthews, Frank Cook, S. H. Malone, Chas. Rountree.

Morgan county is well acquainted with the work of the Alabama Children's Aid Society and in 1920 a splendid sum was raised for them. Twenty-eight children have been cared for from the county alone.

PLEADS GUILTY

Charlie Compton, who was placed in the county jail Tuesday morning charged with the violation of the prohibition law, pleaded guilty before Judge W. T. Lowe of the Morgan county court Tuesday evening and was sentenced to 110 days in the penitentiary. He will be transferred either today or tomorrow to begin the sentence.

POLICEMAN KILLS TWO DETECTIVES

ANNISTON OFFICERS SLAIN IN CAR AFTER DISPUTE; PARTNER IS PRESENT AT AFFRAY

Joe T. Holliday and C. B. Hurst Killed At 2 O'Clock Today

BAD FEELING IS SAID TO HAVE EXISTED

Slayer Drives To County Jail And Surrenders To The Sheriff

ANNISTON, Ala., April 26—Joe T. Holliday and C. B. Hurst, city detectives, were shot to death in an automobile at 2 o'clock this morning by Policeman Marshall Welch, following a dispute between them on Fifteenth street.

After killing his two brother officers, Welch secured a driver for the car, in which both of the officers were killed, and carried the bodies to the undertaking shop, going from there to the county jail and surrendering.

Officer Ernest Davis, partner of Welch, was present at the time, but took no part in the shooting affray. He is also in jail.

Bad feeling has existed between Holliday and Welch for several months. Welch claims he shot Holliday in self defense and that Hurst was accidentally killed.

Davis, who was with Welch, is confined in the county jail, but denies any connection with the killing.

Chief of Police George W. Rutledge made the statement that Welch and Davis had been reported as sleeping on duty last Sunday morning and that they were angered at the two detectives because they thought the report had been made by them.

The bodies of the dead officers probably will be buried in the city Thursday.

FORD MAY SUBMIT WHOLE NEW BID

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 26—Henry Ford is prepared to modify his bid to the government for Muscle Shoals waterpower and nitrate project or submit an entirely new offer for the property, according to authoritative information obtained here this afternoon.

W. B. Mayo, chief of Ford's engineers, and J. W. Worthington, who brought the Muscle Shoals proposition to the attention of Ford, will appear before the house military affairs committee tomorrow in executive session.

Patterson Will Help Commission

Selection of A. G. Patterson, president of the public service commission, to be one of a committee of five to sit with the interstate commerce commission in the hearings to be held in Atlanta next month, has been approved by the Alabama commission. Mr. Patterson was selected by the Southeastern Tariff association. The commission will hear the case of the southeastern class rating.

Divorced Wife Spurns A Reconciliation

Mrs. Alice Thompson.

Reports that she would become reconciled with her husband, Senator Arthur L. Smith, president of the Rhode Island Senate, have been emphatically denied by Mrs. Alice Thompson Smith, of Barrington, Mass., head of that city's branch of the W. C. T. U. Her divorce decree is final, she asserts.

MORGAN BERRIES ARE APPEARING ON LOCAL MARKETS

Morgan county strawberries are beginning to appear on the markets of the county in plentiful quantities.

Hartselle is disposing of the surplus to Albany-Decatur dealers. The Klondyke and Lady Thompson are the varieties of the earlier berries ripening, and it is these which are now being shipped. The Aroma, a later ripening berry has just begun to ripen. Berry raising in Hartselle has been carried on on a small scale for several years.

Last year increased acreage was planted as an experiment to test the money producing results. Those who have carefully tended the plant report that they are well pleased with the results so far. The crop will be in full swing by next week with pretty weather, and it is quite probable that a carload shipment will issue from that station. For next seasons crop, it is positive that many carloads will be shipped from the above point, as there will be many thousand more plants set as soon as the present crop is gathered.

Will Reside At Jackson, Tennessee

H. L. Carter left last night to accept a position at Jackson, Tenn. Following the world war Mr. Carter has been with The Daily and his departure is deeply regretted by every member of the force.

He is a splendid man, an expert in his line, and, on account of family ties, found it advisable to make the change. Since coming to The Daily he has made himself invaluable and leaves here with the esteem and confidence of all.

Mr. Carter served 18 months in Europe, leaving the service with honor, and, on returning to America, was selected as secretary of the Rainbow division, consisting of 16 regiments, a place that he filled with great credit.

LEAGUE OF VOTERS WILL NOT USE 'BIG STICK' IN ELECTION LEADERS DECLARE

Fear That Endorsement of Candidates Might Disrupt the Organization

DISCUSSION SCHEDULED BEFORE CONVENTION

Meeting Will Debate Final Action On The Floor Wednesday

(International News Service)
BALTIMORE, Md., April 26—Congress may breathe more easily today. The League of Women Voters, with its 7,000,000 women votes, will not, as an organization, use the big stick on candidates in the next congressional election. For fear politics may wreck the league, its leaders have given out the word that the organization's hands off policy must be continued.

This comes straight from Mary Barrett Hay, of New York, one of the powers in the organization. "From what I have learned the national officers do not want any action taken on the proposal to endorse or oppose political candidates," Miss Hay told the caucus of the New York state delegation.

A discussion of the question is scheduled today with Miss Hay and Mrs. Solon Jacobs as leaders. According to Miss Hay, they have been told merely to relate the experiences of New York and Birmingham. "It would be a fatal mistake for the league to endorse or oppose candidates," said Mrs. Jacobs. "Immediately political factions would rise up. The league can remain non-partisan and still use the big club. In Birmingham we did it. We exposed the candidates we wanted defeated. Our publicity did defeat them. It is true the league could exert more power if it opposed undesirable candidates, but it could not be done without wrecking the organization, I am afraid."

Missing Seaplane Is Found at Last

(International News Service)

KEY WEST, April 26—A naval seaplane today reported having sighted the seaplane Santa Maria, which left here Monday with six persons for Nassau at Williams island at 11:20 this morning. The Santa Maria, the report said, was out of gasoline. The Santa Maria was discovered by a naval P-5-L plane. Gasoline was transferred from the navy plane to the commercial flying boat and the latter resumed her journey to Nassau, without her passengers, however.

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.

A DELIGHTFUL PRO-FORD EDITORIAL; ENTITLED "WITH HENRY."

There is a growing disposition among the independent writers of the nation to come out boldly for the Ford bid to develop Muscle Shoals. And the brightest, most care free as to worldly riches and corporation clear as to control do not fail to rub it in, good and hard on the enemies of the Ford project. Not the least attractive of independent opinion was a pro-Ford editorial appearing in Monday's edition of The Daily News of Greensboro, North Carolina, the most largely read and most influential newspaper in the Tar Heel state. The editor Earle Godbey is an acquaintance of the local Attorney E. W. Godbey, but no blood relation is thought to exist between the two men. But there seems to be an intellectual kinship in one respect at least—both use humor as a weapon of attack. The editorial referred to is entitled "With Henry," and is as follows:

Citizens of Georgia and Alabama are considerably wrought up over the Muscle Shoals project and the possibility that it will escape Henry Ford. Agitation in behalf of Ford's proposals has been carried on in both states and has had the sympathy of people in many other states. Saturday's mass meeting at Macon, Ga., urged upon congressmen the acceptance of Ford's offers, and former Governor O'Neal of Alabama declared that "congressmen who vote against the Ford proposal will find that they have violated the sentiment of the people of this country." Ford, however, has opposed to him not only interests directly interested in the phase of industry that the development of Muscle Shoals represents, but allied interests, and they have now reached a point where they are more than willing to lose the project themselves and let the government proceed with it itself, in order to keep Ford barred out.

The tone of their propaganda has undergone a change; it has become obviously solicitous and patriotic. Never do in the world not to carry on, they say; if the government isn't pleased with our plans, why the government should do the work, and on so. We are quite convinced that the country will be satisfied if they will let the Detroit wizard practice his witchcraft on the great power project, and while Mr. O'Neal of Alabama perhaps was slightly heated in his remarks on the attitude of Secretary Weeks to the Ford proposals, we can find agreement with him that the sentiment of the people is largely with Ford and his plans.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. PLANS CONTINUED PROGRESS AND NEW ACTIVITIES.

The present Y. M. C. A. membership campaign brings to mind once more, the large plans and extensive program of that institution for boys and men. While its work is distinctively a religious one, the association has never taught religion as a creed, or as a set of principles to be accepted or rejected. The first organization of a Y. M. C. A. by Sir George Williams over a hundred years ago, assumed the possession of religious training as necessary, and proceeded to put religious principles into practice, rather than to define or to teach just what are to be considered as religious principles. As the organization as spread and grown, it was thought, best on a few occasions to make a brief statement of belief, but out side of a statement of the scriptural plan of redemption, as understood by all Christian sects, nothing in the way of a creed was ever adopted. In more recent times church membership on the part of association members, made them active members while those members who claimed no church relationship, were entered as associate members. As is well known the association lays stress on the three fold nature of man, his spiritual, physical, and intellectual life, and has sought first of all to develop in its members full rounded character. In some localities, the stress has been laid on religious development, in others upon mental development, while some associations have given most attention to physical exercises calculated to develop a sound strong body have been encouraged by all modern associations. As for mental training, night schools are maintained upon request. At the present time the "Y" throughout the country has more night classes organized than any other institution attempting similar work. The amount of this kind of effort is confined, of course, to the number of men and boys who desire to enter night school. As there has been demand upon the local association, in the past, for them, night classes have been organized. In the future, if a sufficient number desire it other classes will be organized. The same is true as to physical training and religious training. The local association has one of the best and most home like buildings to be found anywhere and it is conveniently located. The building has been kept in good repair by the Louisville & Nashville railroad since its erection.

Lately a new floor has been placed in the main lobby, which adds greatly to the attractiveness of the place. A well stocked library, a dining room, a large kitchen, and a number of other rooms are on the first floor, while the second story is devoted entirely to dormitories. The basement floor contains a large pool, which is filled regularly during the summer months, and a large number of tub and shower baths are available. Just recently, the management of the association has arranged for tennis courts and volley ball courts near the building. When the present membership campaign is completed it is the expressed intention of the Executive Secretary and the committee of management, to promote all the activities asked for and expected by the membership.

ROMANCE APPEARS TO BE RAPIDLY DISAPPEARING FROM LAND AND SEA.

Gray-haired men, during springtime, are haunted by the fascinating memories of their departed youth.

They recall how, about this time of year, long ago, they dreamed of running away to sea.

Of all forms of romantic adventure, the sailor's life has been the top-notch since Marco Polo some six centuries ago brought the magnetic needle compass from Asia, thereby putting ocean exploration firmly on its feet. It was a great step forward from charting a ship's course by the stars.

In a few generations the world has seen romance steadily driven from the sailor's life.

The beautiful full-rigged schooner rotted at anchor, crowded out by the steamship. The slave trader passed. Pirates were driven from the high seas.

Seamen's unions regulate ocean life where once the cutlass, belayin'-pin and "walking the plank" reigned supreme.

One of the final nails has just been driven in the coffin of ocean romance in the Westinghouse electrical plant, Philadelphia.

The occasion was the first successful demonstration of a giant gyroscope which will prevent big ocean liners from rolling except during heavy storms. Similar "gyro-stabilizers" are already in use on some smaller ships, especially yachts.

The typical 1922 comment about this will be: "Thank goodness, seasickness finally is preventable."

There'll be very little thanks among men, who, as boys, wanted to be "Treasure Island" Pirates when they grew up.

Romance is disappearing from the land, as well as the ocean. It is one of the penalties of what man calls progress, or the conquest of the earth and the elements.

Scientists and inventors are making life dull, cut-and-dried, and romance exists with uncertainties.

The modern boy senses this. The briny deep has no such lure for him as it had for his father. And the 1922 youngster is losing a lot, even if he imagines that he is finding as much romance in wireless and airplanes as his pa found in the domain of shaghaired sailors.

The day is not far off when romance will exist only in science. Boyhood probably has in store a flood of books of the scientific-romance sort such as Jules Verne created.—Anniston Star.

MYSTIFYING LETTER.

Senator John Sharp Williams has written a letter to Col. C. J. Hildreth of Albany, that, we are pained to say, puts us to guessing as to its meaning. The letter is all about Ford, but he does not make himself clear. But here is the letter, which may or may not have been intended for publication:

"I believe that if Henry Ford had been almost anybody except Henry Ford, a practical working agreement in regard to him and the plant would have been long since reached. He has rendered himself, of course, politically and personally obnoxious to many Republicans, especially Senator Newberry, of Michigan."

Senator Williams who has suddenly become tired of his senatorial job and of the world, has put his Alabama friends to guessing. They are left in doubt whether he is for or against Ford and whether he would favor Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals or the bid of some one else. His colleague, Senator Pat Harrison, is on record for Ford.

The senator says the delay in awarding the settlement of the Muscle Shoals question is due to Ford, that if Henry Ford had been anybody else, "a practical working agreement would have long since been reached." If he means that delay was due to Ford's perverseness, or anything of that kind, the Mississippi senator is wrong, as everybody knows, it was six months after Ford made his bid, and there were none others before Secretary Weeks, before any notice of the Ford proposal was taken except dilly-dallying tactics. If the senator means that the delay has been due, and doubt has been thrown upon the final action of the senate because Ford "has rendered himself politically and personally obnoxious to very many republicans, especially Senator Newberry of Michigan," we are left to surmise whether the Mississippi senator thinks that Ford having made himself "obnoxious" to Newberry is an asset or liability!

Surely he would not have Ford otherwise than "obnoxious" to all the Newberrys in and out of the United States senate. That ought to make men of the lofty ideals of the distinguished Mississippi statesman warm up to Ford.

No; Ford made his proposal for government property worth millions that had been practically junked. He waited patiently for six months for the government to act on it. He then got busy, not with the government, not with Secretary Weeks, but with the people. He appealed to the people. He awoke them, and they got busy; and Secretary Weeks and the Alabama Power Company and its allied interests, including Wall street, and what Senator Williams lays to Ford's account, continuous delay, followed. Everybody knows these facts, except, apparently, Senator Williams.—Montgomery Journal.

There are Alabama strawberries finding their way to the different markets of the country. Soon they will be very evident on every hand. The South Alabama product gets ripe at least two weeks in advance of this section. But, the berries raised in this section are said to be sweeter on account of them getting more of the warm sunshine. Hard to beat North Alabama on any kind of commodity, especially fruits in season.

If more of the land of the country was sown down in some good pasture grass and allowed to get a good set, and more cattle and hogs and horse stock were allowed to feed upon it there would be more corn saved from year to year, and there would be more horse stock raised, more cattle and hogs, and then—more money to spend for the things which the farmer needed.

Manufacturing plants the country over are increasing the output with good demand for all products. Every concern however small in a manufacturing way is feeling the improvement which has become quite noticeable in every section of the country over. This is one of the best signs imaginable and shows that we have emerged from the dismal swamp of apathy in production and sales as well, and are climbing the hill of bigger and better business. Money is fairly plentiful, the farmer is beginning to plant the coming crop, and every arrow points to better times with business for all and money with which to buy.

One who has given any thought to the great things being attempted by those who care for the unfortunates never look at a piece of tin foil without thinking of the tubercular camp at Birmingham. It is almost incredible to know that this association is largely aided in its work for the unfortunates of the state with the sale of tin foil shipments.

These shipments are sent to the headquarters of the association at Birmingham by the children of the state. Little do many of them realize the great helpfulness in which they are engaged. It is a fine expression, this saving of something which has annually gone to waste in large quantities, a disease which is taking more toll in the cities, going to the alleviation of the great White state than all other diseases combined. With the program now in force energetically followed through the years which are to come will largely remove this monster from our midst, and the children when they become grown ups can then realize just what a great campaign of helpfulness they were engaged in.

Today is confederate memorial day. A day set apart in which to visit the confederate cemeteries of the country and deposit a wreath in remembrance of those who fell during the sixties. It is a beautiful custom, and is industriously followed by those of the South. Usually an oration is delivered at each gathering in which the lives and deeds of those who thus fell is recounted that the youth of the land may know of the heroism, bravery and fortitude with which their grandfathers fought for what they considered right. The confederate cemeteries of the South are now carefully looked after and their beauty spots being tended by loving hands of those who revere the cause for which their fathers fought.

Great minds have labored and left a legacy in good books which abound in the private and public libraries of the country. This legacy is worth while. It is the experiences of a lifetime put into book form, recounting those things which are wholesome and tend to develop the minds of those who peruse them.

It is valuable information; it deals with actual things made known and possible to others by experimental knowledge, a living testimonial of what actually occurred in the lives of those who have gone out and on. A symposium of what they actually knew; not guess work. In this respect it brings to the door of youth a lifetime of information where one can take up and carry on.

With the closing of many of the schools of the country there will be turned loose much young energy. It is a great problem just how to put this latent energy to work to the best advantage during the vacation period. In the country districts this problem is not hard to solve. But in the towns and cities is where the problem comes in. It is not best for the boy to fold his hands for a four month period. It ought to be possible to give all some kind of work which would develop the physical man, relaxing from the strain undergone while the mental part of their being was being developed in the schools. Here is a problem for big minds to solve; it has not been done so far; that it should be done insofar as it is absolutely possible, all reasonable minds will admit.

First to establish the $10.90 price—"Usco"

THE makers of U. S. Tires made this announcement last November—

"Hereafter the price of the 30 x 3 1/2 'Usco' is $10.90."

The lowest price ever quoted on a tire of quality reputation and standard performance.

And now, with the opening of Spring, there seem to be quite a number of "New and Special tires" coming into the market in the $10.90 price range.

Perhaps you are wondering just what there can be either "new" or "special" about these tires.

It can't be the $10.90 price—"Usco" established that five months ago.

Nor quality reputation and standard performance—for it takes more than one full season for any new tire to demonstrate where it stands in quality and value.

With so many tires rushing into this $10.90 price field (now that the season promises business from the American car-owner), it is worth remembering that "Usco" showed its good faith by announcing this price last fall.

The same intent to serve that has made "Usco" a standard value for years.

The "Usco" Tire was never better than it is today—with its established quality, its time-tested performance, and its price closely figured in tune with the times.

PROGRESSIVE CULTURE CLUB

A very interesting meeting of the Progressive Culture club was held on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. M. Murray as hostess at her home on Sherman street in Albany.

An unusual feature was the talk given by Miss Virginia Handley, of Birmingham, her subject being "The Work of the Children's Aid Society in Alabama" with which she is connected, so her talk was very instructive as well as interesting. After a lengthy business session Mrs. Louis A. Neill, who was elected president of the Federation of Women's clubs of Alabama, gave a concise report of the meeting held last week at Anniston, which was very much enjoyed.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Henry Davis was the hostess yesterday afternoon to the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge club. Mrs. Martin Phelan substituted for a member, who was not present and was presented a dainty vanity. Mrs. O. C. Parker made high score and received the club prize.

After the bridge games, Mrs. Davis served a frozen salad to her guests.

The meeting next week will be with Mrs. O. C. Parker.

WEINIE ROAST.

Mrs. B. B. Pickens was hostess Tuesday evening at a weinie roast complimenting Mrs. Martin Phelan, of Chicago, Ill., who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Dupont on Jackson street. About 24 guests gathered at the Pickens home and motored out on the Moulton pike and there a roast and feast were enjoyed, the party returning home at a late hour.

MRS. DONNEL HOSTESS.

On Monday, April 24, the Woman's Missionary society of the Central M. E. church enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Donnel at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. N. Binford. The president was in her place and led the devotions, choosing "Prayer" as her subject.

After business was disposed of a delightful program was rendered.

The Bible lessons selected for the year are "Cities of Palestine" and "Nazareth" was interestingly presented by Mrs. C. W. Black.

An enjoyable feature of the program was the musical numbers. Messames H. O. Troup, Pulliam and Geers by their solos contributed much to the pleasant afternoon.

After the interesting program was concluded the society adjourned and a social hour was enjoyed. Dainty refreshments consisting of hot toasted sandwiches, tea and bon bons were served.

Mrs. Ashford, Mrs. J. Hollenbeck and Joe, Jr., Misses Miriam Sherrod and Kathryn Crenshaw, of Courtland, will arrive tomorrow to be the guests for a few days of Mrs. C. T. Harper.

Mrs. Walter Ezell is recovering from a ten days' illness at her home on Sherman street.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Rainey are visiting relatives in Huntsville.

Mrs. L. R. Jacks and little daughter, Margaret, have returned from Athens where they spent a week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Egger have moved into the house on Church street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Bennett.

Mrs. Annie Goidel is ill at her home on Fifth Ave. South.

Mrs. H. J. Hartgraves returned to her home Monday from the Benevolent hospital where she has been ill for the past three weeks. She is reported doing nicely.

Mrs. R. L. Morrison, of Nashville, Tenn., returned to her home this morning after a visit to Mrs. J. H. Mayes on Walnut street in Decatur.

Miss Ruth Banks is expected home Friday from Washington, D. C., where as a page from Alabama, she attended the national convention of the D. A. R.

The Girl's Auxiliary of the Central Baptist Church met in regular session at the home of Lorena Ashford. The topic for the meeting was "Southern Baptist Medical Missions" and was very interestingly carried out by Tommie Newton. The meeting opened with a song "Help Somebody Today." And the Lord's Prayer was repeated by all, a sentence prayer for all the missionaries home and foreign. The Bible study was given by Evelyn McMillan. A very interesting topic was given on "Our Work in China," by

TWO ALL-WHITE SPRING COSTUMES

The Craze for Black Is Giving Place
to Fad for White

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

EACH winter the Paris openings and the costumes worn at Palm Beach are the two big factors in shaping our spring modes. This year, as always, these two centres have been watched with the closest interest. Many people thought that Paris could never lay aside its beloved black. Charming it is, to be sure, but one must progress to gayer moods. A riot of colors was the first indication, and now the smartest taste is found in the strong reaction to all white.

Dead white and oyster tint are equally popular and both are dazzling in the bright spring sunlight. Sometimes the white is relieved by the introduction of a bit of color.

This treatment is attractively carried out in the sketch at the left. Yellow wool of a deep gold shade narrowly outlines the simple tunic frock of white crepe. The close-fitting turban is also of white crepe.

The costume at the right is of oyster-white kasha, its only adornment being simple frills of white organdie at the neck and cuffs. Milano, the popular straw for spring, forms the slightly-drooped hat with an edging fringe of white silk.

Frances Burt and a topic on "Healing the Black Man" by Ruby Britnell Loren Ashford and Mildred Wilder sang a duet "The Great Physician" after which all business new and old was looked after and the personal service report was read. Then Mizpah benediction was repeated by all. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served.

MISSION STUDY CLASS

A very enjoyable all day meeting of the Mission Study Class of the First Baptist church was held with Mrs. Philip Humphrey on Monday. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Ramage and Mrs. G. M. Davenport was the instructive leader of the meeting. At the noon hour Mrs. Humphrey served a delightful luncheon to her guests.

YOUR HEALTH

What You Ought to Do If Your Eyes Often "Water"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

Why do your eyes "water"? Is it because they are sensitive to the light, inflamed, suffering from eyestrain, or lacking in drainage? At the outer edge of the orbit, under the corner of the upper lid, are some tiny glands, called the "tear-glands." Near the inner corner of each lid is a little prominence, on the top of which is a minute hole. This opening is the beginning of the drainage canal of the eye.

First, there is a narrow little passage which opens into the tear sac. From the sac runs a tube, called the nasal duct. This opens below into the nose.

The tears form in the tear-glands, run across the eyeball, are collected by the lids, and directed into the drainage system. Your eyes will water if the tears form too rapidly. For instance, if you cry there is a flood. The great increase in the quantity of the fluid is too much for the limited capacity of the drainage system. The tears overflow, and the banks, as it were, are too high to speak, and pour down the cheeks.

The eyes will water if the tear-glands are too active, or if the tear passages are too small.

The former condition may be due to irritation or inflammation of the eyes. Excessive tear formation, or "lacrimation," as it is called, is due among other causes to the need of glasses. The effort to see causes the eyes to become congested and the tears to flow.

It is not uncommon for a person past 40 to complain of pain in the eyes and excessive lacrimation. In all probability the trouble is due to "presbyopia," the natural change in the eyes from advancing age. Little relief will be found until proper glasses have been fitted.

It is not alone the need of glasses due to age that may cause an excessive flow of tears. Uncorrected astigmatism and far-sightedness are other factors. An examination should be made to determine the right strength of glasses.

Some eyes are sensitive because of a peculiar tenderness of the retina and its reaction to strong light.

I speak of "strong" light, but the eye may be just as much affected by a modified light, containing irritating rays. Certain forms of artificial lighting include rays which have a painful effect upon some eyes.

Proper shading of the light, or the wearing of glasses slightly tinted may be necessary to comfort.

Whenever your eyes water or pain there should be made an investigation to determine what is wrong. Free examinations are sent to warn you of trouble. It is not natural to have discomfort or excessive lacrimation. Therefore, you should make plans at once for an examination of your eyes.

Answers to Health Questions

L. L. H. Q.—Do you think it is injurious to eat a tablespoonful of sterilized raw bran every day?

A—I do not believe that you need take tablespoonful of the bran. Swallow it on your cereal and take two tablespoons.

Martial Swing of F-mus Hymn. Many hymns in the song books of modern churches, including some of the most popular and inspiring, are of martial swing and tempo. "Onward, Christian Soldiers" is the most popular of this class of religious songs. The Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould, English pastor, author and song writer, composed the words of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" in 1869. It was to be sung by children, and was written for a special occasion for which the pastor could think of no suitable marching song. He wrote it in one night.

Explaining the Word "Bogus"

Bogus is thought to be a corruption of the French language, Latin bogus, and was applied in French America to the refuse of the cigar case. Another derivation is from burghese, an Italian who hoarded the southwestern states with counterfeit money. Bogus is also the name of a drink made from rum and molasses.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of
Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Has Katherine a Hidden Trump Card?

THAT Lillian was stirred by my story I could see when after I had reached the house with Dicky. In his car trailing protestingly after me, and my supposed "breakdown" had been explained over and over with me, and I had managed to get her alone. With-out, as I hoped, attracting Dicky's attention, and related to her my encounter with the man calling himself Anton, whom I was sure I had recognized as Smith.

Characteristically, Lillian said nothing until I had finished, but I knew by half a dozen little signs familiar to me that the appearance of Smith in this region—the opportunity of watching his movements—was of the utmost importance to her.

"Katherine must hear this."

These were the first words Lillian uttered, and she rose to her feet to summon our little friend, when I interposed anxiously.

"Don't you think you'd better wait until Dicky is out of the house? I—ought to tell you that he is seriously objecting to my helping him in this work, and I don't want to direct any attention of his toward the incidents of our drive. You know he's rather quick, and if he should decide to do any investigating on his own hook, he might discover that Smith was here, and you know—"

"Katherine must hear this."

Her quick perceptions leaped instantly to the fact I was trying to express. "Of course," she said. "He'd not only spill the beans, for I want to let this bird, Smith, have the longest rope a man ever played with, but he'd be very likely to find a knife in his short ribs. Smith's a very bad actor. Inside of twenty-four hours, I'll have a couple of operatives down here who will engage to see that the gifted Mr. Smith doesn't make another unwatched move from now till he lands in a dungeoned cell, whether that desired soul be two days or two years away. But until then we'd better fix up some scheme to chase the Dicky-bird to the city for a couple of days. If Smith can find time off from the errand that brought him down here, he'll try to get Dicky, as he no doubt recognized the car and you and can find out easily where you are."

Her tone expressed the certainty that she knew Smith's errand. I ventured no verbal question—one just naturally

Revelations of a Wife

The Disconcerting Request with Which Dicky Troubled Madge.

THE fear that the man Smith would try to revenge himself upon Dicky, now that he knew he was living within a mile of us, became almost a mania with me in the hours following my encounter with the man upon the woodland road.

Perhaps my obsessive wish that my husband should get away from the vicinity affected Dicky telepathically. At any rate, much to my relief, upon the evening of the same day which had brought Smith back upon my mental horizon, Dicky casually announced that he thought he would run up to New York for two or three days.

"I ought to have gone before," he said, and I knew the statement was but a mild truth. "I've got a million things to give the once over. But I was too lazy when I first came home, and then Mother's accident—and yours—but you can get along all right now, can't you, with Katie back on the job?"

Madge's Resolve.

"Of course," I said, almost a shade too promptly, for I did not want Dicky to guess that I wished him out of the way. That he did fathom my desire—but, of course, not the fear behind the wish—I knew when he gave a short little laugh.

"I will give you a clear field for your diplomatic researches," he said with the suspicion of a sneer, but the little remark drew no irritated response from me. Instead, my mental thermometer indicated a sudden rise. For between the lines I could read Dicky's surrender in the issue between us—that of my helping Lillian in her secret work for the government.

Neither of us had until now referred to that tense moment when Dicky had laid down the law so emphatically to me with such strenuous, almost tragic results. I knew that my husband never would refer to it again, and that this was his way of telling me that he had rescinded his prohibition. But on my part I made a little resolve to keep as much out of this thing as I possibly could without hindering Lillian.

"Look It Up—"

I knew—though I had in times past tried to gloss over the knowledge—that I welcomed the thrill of helping in the great game, of being a tiny part of it, far more than did my childish melodrama-loving mother-in-law. I suppose it is because women for so many centuries have been fettered with the centuries, that they welcome so joyously any chance to do the things which custom and the will of their men folk have kept from them.

"Can I help you get ready?" I asked the customary perfunctory question to cover my silence at Dicky's rebuke, and received his stereotyped answer:

"Yes, you can leave me alone and not bother me."

My knowledge of my husband taught me neither to take offence at this retort nor to pay any attention to it. I stationed myself in my room, opening from his, and pretended to be busy with some sewing, knowing that before he was ready for his journey he would summon me many times.

The early train to the city, which is almost imperative if one does not wish to waste most of the day in travel, makes it impossible for save-lovers, prone to postpone Dicky to wait until the morning to make his preparations for the journey. He has missed the train two or three times by attempting that feat, and has finally submitted to the routine of packing his bag and shaving, leaving nothing for the morning but a dash into his clothes and a snatch at a bite of breakfast.

But the necessity always makes him ill-natured, and I had hard work to keep my resentment at his capricious little flings from betraying itself. Nevertheless, I managed it, and at last he declared himself ready for the trip.

"Much obliged, old dear," he said with a sort of rough unceremoniousness. "You're a good scout, if you are a little hazy in the beam. And now, for the love of Mike, turn out that light and let me get to sleep. I'll only have five or six hours. By the way, do you know where that Spanish comb is that Edie left out here last spring? I've been trying to remember to bring it in to her ever since, but I've never thought of it until I've seen her. Look it up for me, that's a good girl, and slip it into my bag. It's so it won't break."

"It's in a case," I heard myself saying. "It won't break. I'll get it right away."

"Time enough in the morning," Dicky said sternly. "Turn out that light. I told you! Good-night."

Fortuitous Circumstances.

"Did you have a good time at Smith's last evening?" "Can't say that I did. Mrs. Smith is an old sweetheart of mine and I owe Mr. Smith $10."

THE WISE AND THE FOOLISH WASP.

ONE bright summer day two little wasps happened to stop to sip of a lovely rose.

"Good-morning, friend," said the wasp, who was dressed in the darker suit.

"How do you like this day?"

"Very lovely it is, indeed," buzzed the other. "And, pray, what is your name? Mine is Mistress Yellow Jacket."

"I might have guessed it by your suit," laughed the other. "I'm Miss Solitary, called so by my relatives, because I always live alone."

"How dreadful!" exclaimed Mistress Yellow Jacket. "And you have no brothers or sisters?"

"Well," laughed the other, "if I have, I've never seen them."

"But where did your mother keep your brothers and sisters that you've never seen them?" asked Mistress Yellow Jacket. "Oh, I see! You mean that you left the wasp home before they were hatched out. Well, I guess by the time you get back you'll find plenty to greet you."

"Plenty what?" exclaimed Miss Solitary. "I haven't any wasp home to go back to. What's a wasp home?"

And she sidled up closer to the little yellow jacket. "It's a great big bug!"

At this Mistress Yellow Jacket laughed so heartily she nearly tumbled off the rose.

"Of course it's not a great big bug!" she mumbled. "A wasp home is made of paper, and the paper is made of mud."

"Paper and mud!" exclaimed Miss Solitary. "You mean to say a wasp home is made of paper and mud? Then I've never seen one."

"You poor dear!" cried Mistress Yellow Jacket. "Settle down near me and I'll teach you how to make a home. And she flew to the wood and settled on a wild cherry tree. Miss Solitary at her side, Mistress Yellow Jacket showed her how to chew up the soft bark and mould it into a little cell."

"Now, then, that's one chamber finished," she laughed. "Now, I'll put in an egg and a spider, and keep building more cells and laying more eggs and putting in spiders until my home and family are complete. Now, isn't that lovely? Why, before you realize it my family will be hatched and then I'll be

Chalk as a Coal Substitute

By treating chalk with a patented process, by which it is blended with a rich carbonaceous material, a British company claims a fuel can be produced as efficient as coal for household use, at a price of $3.75 a ton. The fuel has a valuable by-product in that the ash remaining after combustion can be utilized as cement or fertilizer.

Quite a crowd from here and surrounding places visited Cooper mountain, about three miles southeast of here, Sunday to see the great rock that fell from the side of the bluff there. It was a sand stone rock as large as a good size house and about 50 feet high. Years ago there was a small crack in the top of the rock, which became larger as time went on until you could not even jump across it in safety, and supposedly on Monday night of last week during the heavy rain, it fell bursting into many small pieces and leaving one large piece. Beneath the large rock was a bed of coal, although it could not be told how deep the bed was or of what quality.

their queen mother. Won't it be jolly fun?" and she flung in and out the cherry leaves, happy with her work. But Miss Solitary Wasp only shook her head.

"Well," she sighed, "I've never heard of anything so foolish. Not for me! I prefer stinging a bug, laying an egg on it, and letting it take care of itself. Not me! Why, I wouldn't be bothered with a family-buzzing-around-my-head. No, I hatched from an egg, laid on a spider tucked away under some leaves. Mrs. Tree Toad told me all about it. She said my mother was a person who always lived alone, that's why she called me 'Miss Solitary.' You may chew your head off building a house to store and hatch your eggs—but not for me!"

With a buzz of disgust the foolish little wasp sailed away, while wise Mistress Yellow Jacket went on happily with her paper house, which she swung among the wild cherry leaves. She raised a large family, and when fall and the cold days arrived, Mistress Yellow Jacket curled up in a snug little bed and rested.

The foolish little solitary wasp was never seen again. Probably she was gobbled up by some savage bug, and it may be she was frozen to death. But wise little Mistress Yellow Jacket lived to raise several families, and should you pass through that part of the woods today you can see her little deserted mansion still hanging to a limb in the wild cherry tree, for every spring Mistress Yellow Jacket builds a new home.

"Your Engine Is In Fine Condition"

This is the usual report after an inspection of a motor that throughout all of its service-life has been kept properly lubricated with the right amount and the right "body" of motor oil. Stanocola Polarine possesses lots of that very important property of a true lubricant—that is, "oiliness." It reduces frictional wear, forms a perfect piston ring seal under all conditions of clearance, temperature, speed and load; prevents excessive carbon deposits, gasoline waste and dilution of oil in your crank case. To keep your car from a premature old age, put no motor oil in it but

Sea Serpent Pure Myth.

There are no sea serpents and armor-plated monsters that rise from ocean's bottom and frighten vacationists. So says the prince of Monaco, one of the world's foremost oceanographers. Forget, also, the prince says, mental pictures of deep-sea forests of lace-like vegetation waving gently as submarine monsters move lazily through it. The depths of the sea are as barren as the tops of mountains. That is why there are no monsters in the depths of the sea; there is nothing there for them to feed on.

Indiana Lady Had Something Like Indigestion Until She Took Black-Draught, Then Got All Right.

Germany, Ind.—"Some time ago I had a sick spell, something like indigestion," writes Mrs. Clara Peacock, of Route 6, this place. "I would get very sick at the stomach, and spit or vomit, especially in the mornings. Then I began the use of Theodor's Black-Draught, after I had tried other medicines. The Black-Draught relieved me more than anything that I took, and I got all right. I haven't found anything better than Black-Draught when suffering from trouble caused by constipation. It is easy and sure. Can be taken in small doses or large as the case calls for."

When you have sick stomach, indigestion, headache, constipation, or other disagreeable symptoms, take Black-Draught to help keep your system free from poison. Theodor's Black-Draught is made from purely vegetable ingredients, acts in a gentle, natural way, and has no bad after-effects. It may be safely taken by young or old.

PRAISE GLEE CLUB

The Atlanta Constitution speaking of the recent appearance of the University Glee Club in Atlanta had this to say of the young Alabama warblers: The University of Alabama Glee Club appeared at its best at Agnes Scott College Saturday evening. The program was one of the most attractive ever arranged by Director Garner in the seventeen years since he organized and directed the first Alabama Glee club. The boys themselves easily measure up to the high standard of ability always recognized wherever the Alabama Club has appeared.

Each of the sixteen numbers on the program was highly appreciated by an audience as large as Agnes Scott chapel would seat, the applause at times reaching that volume one would expect if Tech were to defeat Penn State on Grant Field. Robert A. Berry of Americus, Ga., was probably the favorite. He appeared in ten of sixteen numbers appearing to equal advantage in both the vocal and instrumental numbers. Stark Padgett at the piano rendered jazz of his own composition, probably received more applause than any other except Mr. Ide and Mr. Berry in their Mandolin and guitar duets. The club will appear at the Masonic Theater on Friday evening, April 28 at 8 o'clock.

Kilby Relieves Knox of Hard Labor Sentence

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 26—W. H. Knox, state law enforcement agent, sentenced to 30 days at hard labor and fined $500 for assaulting Phil Painter, Birmingham newspaper man, on a street in Birmingham, was relieved of the hard labor sentence and $450 of the fine by an order of Governor Kilby Tuesday afternoon. Knox will be required to pay a fine of $50 and all costs of the case, which will be heavy because of an appeal from the circuit court to the court of appeals and then to the supreme court.

In relieving Knox of the hard labor sentence and a portion of the fine, Governor Kilby attached to the record a statement of the case as required by the constitution. In this statement, the governor said: "The first duty of an officer charged with the enforcement of the law is to see that he himself does not violate the law which he has sworn to uphold."

"The defendant should be properly punished for the offense of which he has been convicted but there is nothing in the circumstances attending the offense that calls for too severe and unusual punishment for such offenses."

"After careful consideration of the entire matter, my judgment is that the fine of $50 and costs are sufficient; the fine above that amount and the hard labor sentence are hereby remitted."

Knox accused Painter of responsibility for the circulation through the mail of vicious attacks on the state law enforcement department.

Tokio Rocked By Severe "Quake"

TOKIO, April 26—Three are known to have been killed and 100 persons injured in the most severe earthquake that has shaken Tokio in 30 years. No foreigners were killed or injured, so far as is known. GOODYEAR TIRE MEET IS SUCCESS

The third of a series of meetings which is being held over the entire South, was held here last Friday by representatives of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. The local agent, Frank P. Lide, who operates the service station here, was largely instrumental in having this place selected as one of the places where these meetings are to be held. As stated in the previous article, a business meeting was held at the Lide service station preparatory to the main part of the meeting which was concluded at the Lyons hotel where a five-course dinner was served, George Menefee, of Birmingham, branch manager, acting as toastmaster, at which time all the service station dealers in the district were present.

Immediately following the banquet the dining room was darkened and a moving picture show was put on by department heads from the factory at Akron, Ohio. The show was very helpfully educational in its line, better acquainting the service dealers with every phase of the production of the famous Goodyear tires. Helpful lectures followed the illustrated pictures, delivered by Messrs. Jones and Hanover, factory representatives. A feature of these meetings planned for the entire South is the pictures of service stations, their equipment, etc., and shown at other places where the meetings are to be held to acquaint the many dealers of the Goodyear company with unique and effective methods used at other places. The meeting was well attended, was considered very helpful as well as highly entertaining to the large number of service station agents of the company who were present.

MANY STILLS TAKEN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 26—(Special)—Seven stills were confiscated by agents of the state law enforcement department in Bullock county and two in Shelby county during the week-end, according to reports to the department today. Seven persons were arrested in Bullock, three being for operating stills, two for having stills in their possession and two for violating the prohibition laws.

Five Unusual Egg Dishes for Holy Week.

To those who observe the fast days of Holy Week, and to those who do not, egg dishes will be welcome, and we never can know too many attractive ways of serving them. Fresh eggs are always plentiful at this particular season, and their prices are appealing, so it is wise to use them in dishes which would seem extravagant at other times.

Eggs variously prepared often solve the main luncheon-dish problem for the good-sized family, and there are so many persons who do not care to eat meat or hearty food three times a day, but who find eggs satisfactory, that they are really worth learning to prepare properly. Needless to say, they should be fresh to achieve the best results.

Eggs with Asparagus Tips.
 Beat six eggs together and add a half-cupful of rich milk and a little salt and pepper. Open and drain a can of asparagus tips, then cut the tips in small pieces. Put a lump of butter into a steel frying-pan, and when melted and hot, pour in the egg mixture. Turn them with a silver fork, and when they begin to scramble, add the tips and continue to stir until done. Turn onto a hot dish and garnish with parsley.

Eggs in Parsley.
 Lightly butter a fireproof earthen or glass shallow dish, then break into it enough eggs to cover the bottom. Do this very carefully, so as not to break the yolks. Place in the oven until the eggs are set, then turn over a little melted butter, pepper and salt, sprinkle with a little chopped parsley, and place a teaspoonful of whipped cream on top of each egg.

Oyster, Lobster or Fish Scramble.
 Beat six eggs with a small cupful of cream, pepper, salt and a saltspoonful of curry powder. Put butter in the frying-pan, and pour in the mixture. Have ready a cupful of minced lobster, finely flaked fish or cut-up oysters. When the eggs begin to set, turn in the filling, and stir vigorously with a silver fork until the eggs are done. Dish on a hot plate and serve cream sauce over all. Garnish with parsley and toast shippets.

Spanish Eggs.
 Butter a frying-pan with a heaping tablespoonful of butter and slice in a Spanish onion, two large tomatoes, and a quarter bud of garlic, and add two finely-minced peppers. First removing the seed cones. Season with pepper, salt and a little sugar, and cook until all are done but not brown. Dish on slices of buttered toast and lay a poached egg on top of each slice. Dust with a little paprika and garnish with sprays of cress.

Baked Eggs.
 Lay toast rounds on a buttered baking-dish, and spread them with a paste made of fresh butter, Roquefort cheese and pepper and salt, softened with a little French dressing. Break an egg or top of each slice and put into the oven long enough to get the eggs. Remove and dust with paprika, then lay a strip of broiled bacon on top of each egg. Garnish the eggs with parsley.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Real, Honest Friendship

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

WHAT'S a true friend?

One who thinks you perfect, one who can never see a fault, one who encourages you in every folly and defends you in every careless cruelty and needless disregard of the rights of others? Not to my mind.

A true friend is one who knows my faults, every one of them, almost better than I know them myself, and likes me, anyhow.

I hate a friend that always agrees with me and always praises me and always tells me how nice I look, even when I happen to know that I'm looking anything but nice.

I don't care for a friend who thinks I'm so stupid that I have to be flattered into friendship.

Plain words from an honest heart—but not too plain, if you please. And be sure that the heart is really honest—not merely envious or spiteful.

True Friends

True friends—why, the world is full of them.

There's the woman I know down in a New England village. I only see her once in four or five years, and then only for a day or so.

But she and I were girls together and I know that if I were in trouble she would cross the continent to help me, if she possibly could.

She's clever and brilliant and successful—but never mind, she's a true friend, just the same. Here's to her and to all her kind.

There's the other woman in a queer little town in the middle West. Not brilliant like the New Englander, not rich like my other friend in New York, not always so very happy, either.

But she'd share her last slice of bread with me, just as I would share my last slice with her, and we both know it and we don't have to write to each other once a week or even once in six months to realize it.

There's the man in New York, the successful man of affairs—his life is crowded from one end of the day to the other, but he's never too busy to come and take an old friend to luncheon or to the theatre, and once, he closed his office and took a whole day and we went for a drive in the green fields—my old friend and I—and talked for eight hours without ever stopping except for a bite to eat.

I never see him these days and do not hear from him more than once a year, but he is there—and I know it—and the world will be a very lonely place for me if he leaves it before I do.

There's the young friend in Chicago—just a boy he is—an eager boy with his heart full of dreams and his head full of brains. And he thinks I'm perfectly wonderful. Poor boy, some day he'll laugh to think how mistaken he was, but just now he would cut his right arm off at the shoulder for me.

Here's to Friendship

There's the bright-eyed, cozy little woman down in Los Angeles—bless her heart, I wonder what kind of cake she's baking today, and whose baby she's taking care of for the afternoon, and what homesick girl has come to her for comfort. Dear little Chippie, what a perennial spring of joy you are in this gray, dry, old world of ours.

Friends—the world is full of them. Good friends, true friends, loving friends, friends who knew me and my mistakes and shortcomings and carelessness and everything that is bad and foolish and weak about me—but they like me, anyhow.

Why?

Because I like them and because I don't expect them to be angels or saints or marvellous beings from above. I know they're human and I love them that way, and we've been happy together and sad together. We've worked together and played together. We've been successful together and we've made failures together. We've sat up after the party and shrieked over the best joke of the evening, which no one saw but us. We've watched together for the first issue of the paper and called the proofreader names—together.

We tried to save Jessie from a foolish marriage—together we tried. We've talked about everybody and about ourselves and bragged and camouflaged the world, or tried to—together.

And that's why—we're friends.

Here's to true friends and honest friendship—may the world never lack for either of them.

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

Where Gold Teeth Are Sold by Peddlers on Street Corners

By TEMPLE MANNING

FAR off in western China, near the border of Tibet, is a small city called Chungking. Situated at the junction of the Kialing river and the Yangtze river, this city is built on a solid rock, covering an area of one square mile only.

In this small space are packed six hundred thousand human beings. Drainage is impossible on account of the rock, and as a result, Chungking is the filthiest place one can imagine. How the inhabitants can live is almost beyond the comprehension of a foreigner, who cannot hurry enough to get out of the turmoil of sound and the offensive odors which are characteristic of this human ant-hill.

It is a good thing that in the miserable poverty which naturally exists

WORDS of WISE MEN

If you have a minute to spare, don't worry a man who hasn't.

The man who feels certain he will not succeed is seldom mistaken.

The more you leave things to chance, the less chance there is for you.

No one is useless in the world who lightens the burden of it for any one else.

Character is what you are—reputation is what you try to make people think you are.

Squinting Brings Wrinkles.

Squinting the eyes is a bad habit which is rather attractive when young, but which will induce all sorts of wrinkles around the eyes when one is older.

A Chung King Tooth-Seller.

there, as in China in general, and the unwholesomeness of the place, the traveler can find something to laugh about. And he surely can do this if he has the slightest sense of humor.

It is a common sight to see a vendor walking along the street with a tray fastened around his neck. On this tray is a large assortment of gold teeth.

A wag once said: "How much a gold tooth does to brighten an otherwise plain countenance!"

This is certainly the belief in Chungking, for false teeth are very fashionable, and the vendors do a rushing business.

A prospective buyer, who has ambitions to improve his personal appearance, is an amusing sight in the streets of Chungking. He will select a shining gold tooth and fit it over one of his own good teeth carefully. He will then look at himself critically in the mirror furnished by the tooth peddler, and they will both examine it as to the fit. Then, if it is not satisfactory, they will throw it back in the pile and try another until entire satisfaction has been obtained.

The proud new owner of the gold decoration—for that is all it is—will pay the price with pleasure and walk off consciously smiling to show his newly-acquired adornment, contented and happy with the assurance that he is ultra-modern and distinguished without a doubt.

'CLEAN UP WEEK' BEING OBSERVED VERY GENERALLY

Clean up week is being observed generally over the Twin Cities and the work fostered in Decatur by the Parent-Teachers association and in Albany by the chamber of commerce is bearing fruitful results.

Alleys are taking on a much cleaner appearance and the city wagons are hauling away immense amount of trash every day. The Twin Cities are after the honor of being the cleanest cities in the state.

This afternoon members of the women's committees and the Boy Scouts will begin a movement to beautify the area behind Second avenue stores, visible from the passenger station. Much interest is being shown in the work.

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK IS OBSERVED

May 1 Sees Inaugurated First General Campaign of Kind in Service.

Without the Postal Service, business would languish in a day, and be at a standstill in a week. Public opinion would die of dry rot. Sectional hatred or prejudice only would flourish, and narrow-mindedness thrive.

It is the biggest distinctive business in the world and it comes nearer to the innermost interests of a greater number of men and women than any other institution on earth. No private business, however widespread, touches so many lives so often or so sharply; no church reaches into so many souls; flutters so many pulses, has so many human beings dependent on its ministrations.

"Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1, by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of its kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations, large users of the mail, newspapers, motion pictures, advertisers, and the entire organization of 326,000 postal workers are to be enlisted in this country-wide campaign of interest in postal improvements. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return-address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always look at your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter.

If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

Franklin on Thrift.

A man may, if he knows how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone all his life and die not worth a groat at last.—Benjamin Franklin.

THE MODERN MOTHER

Woman's complex life with its multitudinous calls is given as the reason for many a nervous breakdown. Home work, social obligations, dressmaking and the care of children keep the 20th century woman in a whirlwind of activity until headaches develop, backache, nervousness and oftentimes more serious ills which are peculiar to her sex alone. Such women should not despair, but be guided by the letters so often published in this paper from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This is a root and herb medicine hat contains no drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.—Advertisement.

Biggest Table Cloth in England. In the linen room of Buckingham palace is a beautifully hand woven tablecloth that was made for the coronation of Queen Victoria and is large enough to cover a table for 500 diners. It has only been used on five occasions. There is a legend that wine has never been spilled on the cloth, and that it forecasts ill luck to any one who spills wine on it.

WHERE ALL TRAINED NURSES WEAR TROUSERS.

It takes the traveler some time to gain a glimpse in the Chinaman who is the man power of the Chinese taxi-cab known as a rickshaw. The traveler is not so sure that the human horse is not going to spit his fare out on the sidewalk, as he tears along the narrow crowded streets, dodging other rickshaws and the throngs of pedestrians.

After the visitor has become accustomed to this curious mode of locomotion he forgets his steed and his fear, and enjoys the unusual sights of the city.

Shanghai has more "pep" than any of the Chinese cities, due to the fact that it is the chief seaport of China. It is the New York of the east, and is almost as cosmopolitan.

There is even a handsome Gothic Cathedral in Shanghai, built by the British settlers. It comes as rather a shock to find it in the very midst of the Orient. There are other fine European buildings there, too, which are about the only signs of beauty in the place for it is the people of the city that make Shanghai interesting.

Except for the stimulus which commerce gives, Shanghai has no redeeming feature. It is low, swampy and unhealthy. Fortunately for this city where there is so much illness, the American, English and French have built very fine hospitals, where excellent care under the supervision of American and European doctors is given the endless poor of Shanghai.

In passing one of these fine hospitals, as you peer out of your rickshaw into the hospital, you wonder who the little

Each of these little ladies wears a broad black satin band around her hair, and is dressed in spotless white jacket and blue satin trousers.

Who are they? They are the trained nurses! And good ones, too!

NEWS OF MOULTON
AND LAWRENCE COUNTY

MOULTON, April 24—(Special)—
Mrs. Lou Shelton, 84 years of age in June, one of the most highly respected women of her portion of the county, died at her home at Kimo, two miles from Moulton on the Hillsboro road. With the exception of one year in childhood, her life had been spent at the home place. Her first husband, Oxford Windham, was killed in the civil war. To her marriage was born Going Windham, a successful merchant of Moulton, and Mrs. J. C. Couch, of Texas. The children of her second marriage were Willie Shelton, a prosperous farmer near Moulton, Mrs. Eva Lockwood, postmistress at Kimo, and Mrs. Marvin Cowan, with whom she was making her home, and one deceased, Mrs. Aldridge. A large number of grandchildren also survive her. Funeral services were held at the home and interment took place today near Fairfield, six miles east of Moulton, near the Decatur road. Mrs. Shelton was a consistent member of the Methodist church.
